Faith is complete trust, confidence, or belief in something or someone, often without absolute physical proof. Blind faith is the complete acceptance of a belief, doctrine, or person without requiring evidence, reason, or critical examination. Reasoned faith is the harmonious integration of belief and logic, positing that trust in God or spiritual truths should be grounded in evidence and rational understanding.

The phrase, “Faith only, evidence not needed,” points to a long-running debate within Christianity regarding faith versus evidence, and the theological concept of “faith alone,” (sola fide). While many Christians regard faith as a “leap in the dark” without tangible proof, other scholars argue that the Christian faith is rooted in - and substantiated by – archeological, historical, and scientific evidence.

Sadly, many Christian churches and believers have been dismissive of the scientific and archeological evidences that bear witness to the existence of God and to the historic events recorded in the Scriptures. Many believers have been taught to ‘just believe’ with blind faith and not be concerned with the evidences of God and of the events recorded in the Scriptures.

Elohim (God) expects believers to have reasoned faith, not blind faith.

ISAIAH 1:18 (NKJV):

“Come now, and let us reason together,” says YHWH (the Lord).

Does God expect us to have blind faith? No. Blind faith is needed to believe in other gods, but not for the Elohim (God) of the Holy Scriptures. A person needs blind faith to believe in the gods of the Egyptians, the elephant god of the Hindus, the gods of the Greeks, the gods of the Romans, and all other pagan deities. The other false gods of the world are supported through idolatry, non-eyewitness storytelling, and cultural tradition.

This video will chronicle many of the scientific and archeological evidences that prove, beyond a reasonable doubt, the existence of Elohim (God) and many of the great events that have been recorded in the Holy Scriptures.

HOW DO YOU KNOW GOD EXISTS? HOW CAN YOU NOT?

Before stars, before time, before light, there was a moment when everything began. What if creation wasn't random... but intentional? Every creation has a creator. The Creator of the universe is the God of the Bible.

The deeper science goes into life and the cosmos, the harder it becomes to ignore the intelligent design. From atom to galaxies, we observe intelligent design everywhere.

If the universe had a beginning, then space, time, and matter are not eternal. Something beyond them must be. God created time, space, and matter. Asking "Where did God get the matter?" is a logical fallacy. It assumes matter already existed before God created it. That's not a gotcha, That's a logical fallacy.

A creator / God must exist in order for anything to have a beginning. The laws of physics are the brushstrokes of a master architect.

If the expansion rate of the universe had been different by even a tiny fraction – galaxies like ours would never have formed.

- Paul Davies, The Goldilocks Enigma, 2006

Our solar system is a single grain in the galaxy, yet perfectly calibrated for life.

PSALM 19:1 (NIV):

The heavens declare the glory of God; the skies proclaim the work of His hands.

ROMANS 1:20-21 (NKJV):

For since the creation of the world His invisible attributes are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even His eternal power and Godhead, so that they are without excuse, because, although they knew God, they did not glorify Him as God, nor were thankful, but became futile in their thoughts, and their foolish hearts were darkened.

When the surface water freezes... life below still survives. This is intelligent design by God. From the smallest atom to the largest galaxy, intelligent design is everywhere.

Why time and chance does not favor unguided evolution. Adding time does not solve the impossible. In a degrading system, time increases disorder, not the emergence of highly organized, synchronized complexity. More time is not an explanation – it is just more time.

INCREDIBLE CREATURES THAT DEFY EVOLUTION

ANGLERFISH: A living deep-sea light system. Built for total darkness with a natural glowing lure, expandable jaws, pressure-resistant body, and precision hunting system.

BIRDS: Birds have lower bone density to help them fly.

BOMBARDIER BEETLE: Defies evolution. It mixes chemicals within its body and fires them out against predators as a defense mechanism.

BUTTERFLIES: Butterfly wings have 200,000 individual scales that create their stunning color patterns!

CAMEL: A camel's hump: an intelligent design to store water for the desert.

DRAGONFLY: The dragonfly is intelligently designed. Nature's engineering, perfect in flight, inspiring innovation. From the tiniest vein to the swiftest flight, the dragonfly reveals a perfect harmony of form and function.

OCTOPUS: Intelligently designed. Three hearts and nine brains (one central brain plus eight in its arms).

PLANTHOPPER: The planthopper, a living insect with engineered gear structures, shows an intelligent design. The planthopper insect uses interlocking mechanical gear structures in its hind legs to perfectly synchronize its jump. It was once widely believed that only human beings produced mechanical gear structures.

STARFISH: The starfish have no blood, a masterpiece of design.

BLUE WHALE (Largest Animal on Earth): Evolutionists want you to believe that a microcell can change into a blue whale without any guided process.

HUMAN BEINGS ARE FEARFULLY AND WONDERFULLY MADE

Approximately one sperm out of 250 million succeeds to fertilize an egg that gave you life. God's creation is wonderful.

INTELLIGENTLY DESIGNED HUMAN BODY PARTS: Each of them is perfectly designed for a specific purpose.

BONES: The skull protects the brain, while the spine supports posture and movement. The rib cage protects vital organs, while the spine provides support and flexibility. The shoulder bones help the arms move freely. The pelvis supports body weight. The femur is the strongest bone in the body. The tibia and fibula helps to stand, walk, and maintain balance.

CELLS: The complexity of one cell shows how silly the Theory of Evolution is. If a part of the cell did not work it would die. What evolved first? A single living cell is more sophisticated and precisely organized than any machines humans have ever built. Cells inside your body communicate with each other through light called biophotons. Every living cell functions like an automated factory with error correction, energy systems, and molecular machines working together in perfect coordination. The first living self-replicating cell. Could this be possible without an intelligent mind behind it? Intelligence is needed for cell replication. The requirements for a self-replicating cell. A self-replicating cell is a system that can grow, copy its components, and divide to produce offspring cells. If you found a self-replicating error-correcting, energy-harvesting nano-factory in the desert, you wouldn't call it a product of sand and wind. Why do we do that about the cell? Could this be the result of unguided processes? More than 200 specialized cell types working in perfect coordination. Your body contains an estimated 37 trillion cells working together every second to keep you alive. All the cells in your body, stretched end to end, would circle the Earth about nine times. If all the cells in your body stretched end to end, they would reach the Moon. Mitochondria, the powerhouse of the cell, converting fuel into usable energy.

DNA: Some people believe DNA is not designed. DNA is not random code. It is the most sophisticated information system ever discovered – and information always comes from a mind. DNA replication requires enzymes, proofreading systems, and energy conservation machinery already functioning in harmony from the start. DNA doesn't just store information – it reads, edits, replicates, and regulates it with precision no human engineer has matched. Randomness doesn't write software like that. Intelligence does. What tells cells exactly where the head, the body, etc., should be in a growing embryo? The DNA code builds the body step by step in real time. In the early embryo, a cell becomes a ball that flattens and folds. The code marks one end as the head and the other as the tail, setting up the basic body plan before arms or legs form. The DNA code in your body, if written in books, would fill the Grand Canyon 50 times. One human's body contains about 74 billion kilometers (46 million miles) of DNA. If stretched out, it could reach from Earth to the Sun and back around 240 times. Or wrap around Earth's equator more than 1.8 million times. If Charles Darwin had seen the code in DNA and the nano-machines in every cell, he wouldn't have believed in unguided evolution.

MOLECULES: Molecules don't accidentally assemble into molecular machines that outperform anything humans have ever built. Someone had to design the assembly line. ATP synthase: The molecular machine that powers life. Cells use microscopic rotary motors like ATP synthase that operate with extraordinary efficiency every second of your life. Inside living cells, kinesin proteins walk along microtubules, carrying essential cargo with molecular precision. The bacterial flagellar motor seems super intelligently designed for a purpose.

BLOOD: Your body produces about 2-3 million red blood cells every second. These specialized cells transport oxygen from your lungs to tissues throughout your body, helping keep every organ functioning. The human body has more than 60,000 miles of blood vessels. That's enough to wrap around the planet Earth 2.4 times. White blood cells are body defenders and are intelligently designed.

BRAIN: The human brain contains roughly 86 billion neurons connected by nearly 100 trillion synapses – over 300 times more connections than the number of stars in the Milky Way galaxy.

Head: The human head: A masterpiece of biological engineering.

Ear: The intelligent design of the human ear.

EYE: The human eye. Darwin said, "If it could be demonstrated that any complex organism existed which could not possibly have been formed by numerous, successive, slight modifications, my theory would absolutely break down. Welcome to the human eye. Design speaks for itself. A masterpiece of precision. An interface with the world. The human eye is a masterpiece of design. The human eye is a complex optical system. Light enters through the cornea and pupil focused by the lens. The retina converts light into signals for the brain. Can unguided processes generate such a marvelous design?"

FACE: Your beautiful human face has a design behind it.

HAND: Layers of the human hand. An intricate masterpiece of form and function.

HEART: Our heart is a masterpiece of intelligent design. It beats nearly 100,000 times per day, pushing close to 2,000 gallons of blood through your body. It automatically adjusts to movement, stress, temperature, and changing oxygen needs within seconds.

KNEES: Knees are intelligently designed.

LIVER: The human liver can regenerate even if 70% is cut away!

MEMORIES: How does human memories store inside the cells? What is the mechanism? How does it recall? no answer. Your entire life is stored somewhere science cannot find.

NOSE: Your nose is a superpower. The human nose can likely detect more than one trillion different smells.

EVIDENCES OF A GLOBAL FLOOD

In a time of widespread wickedness God saw that humanity had become corrupt, but Noah found favor in God's eyes for his righteousness. God instructed Noah to build an ark, a massive boat to save his family and pairs of every animal species from a coming flood that would cleanse the Earth. Noah obeyed, constructing the ark as God commanded. When the ark was ready animals entered in pairs and Noah's family boarded. The heavens opened and rain poured for 40 days and nights, flooding the Earth. Waters covered even the highest mountains and all life outside the ark perished. After 150 days the waters receded and the ark rested on Mount Ararat. God made a covenant with Noah promising never to flood the Earth again, symbolized by a rainbow. Noah's faith and obedience brought salvation and a new beginning for humanity. – Genesis 6.

NOAH'S ARK – DISCOVERED!

Noah's ark has been found in Turkey. Uzengili, Turkey, 1959. Army Captain Ilhan Durepinar flies an aerial reconnaissance mission for NATO. Captain Durupinar is there to take photographs from his plane in order to map a remote area in the Turkish highlands. A few years prior there had been three large earthquakes that altered the terrain, so the government wants abetted images. The flight is routine until he spots something strange. He's flying over basically the middle of nowhere when he sees a startling and unusual formation amongst the rocks below, which of course, he photographs. When the film is developed, the captain is surprised to see what appears to be the remains of a large ship far inland and 6,500 feet above sea level. What in the world would a boat be doing way up there? He doesn't know it yet, but he may just have stumbled on to the answer, some people think, of a great biblical mystery that has been out there for thousands of years.

The mystery of Noah's ark. The story of Noah's ark is told in the biblical book of Genesis. After God creates the universe and mankind begins with Adam and Eve, they go on to populate the Earth. Ten generations later, Noah is born. According to Genesis, during Noah's time, God loses faith in humanity. Humankind becomes evil and sinful, and God sees all this and is very, very displeased by it and He essentially decides to hit the reset button. He is going to wipe out all living things that He has created and start afresh. God spares Noah and his family on one condition: he must build an ark and stock it with pairs of every animal on Earth.

So the ark is a giant ship. It's designed to survive this cataclysmic flood that's about to cover the Earth. God gives Noah extremely detailed instructions on how to build this ark. How many floors it should have, how many rooms, what type of wood to use, and even its exact dimensions. 515 feet long, 86 feet wide, 51 feet tall.

According to the book of Genesis, the flood lasted for forty days and forty nights. Eventually, as the waters receded back into the Earth, the ark came to rest on the mountains of Ararat. And actually there is today a mountain called Mount Ararat. It's a huge peak in Turkey. And Durupinar's aerial photo was taken just a few miles south of there.

For centuries religious scholars and historians, view the story of the great flood as a metaphor, a warning that God punishes sin. But curiously the flood is also mentioned in both the Torah and Qur'an. Could these photos be proof that Noah's tale is in fact true?

Durupinar's photos create a real kind of firestorm of controversy and excitement. People are super excited, because if these photos actually show Noah's ark, then they can prove that everything written in the Bible about this whole event, is actually true.

September, 1959. During a routing military exercise at Mount Ararat a Turkish army captain stumbled upon something extraordinary. Having grown up hearing the stories of Noah's Ark, Captain Durupinar couldn't believe his eyes as he peered upon a boat-shaped formation in the ground. A team of archaeologists were called were called to investigate in what would become more than a 60-year project. Initially the site was dismissed as a geological anomaly, but it wasn't until 2019 when things changed quickly. The ground penetrating radar revealed subterranean layers and angular structures, which is uncommon when looking at natural formations, specifically parallel lines 9 feet below the ground, and what looked to be rooms. The team also discovered drogue stones, which they believe were used to stabilize the boat.

It fits the general dimensions of 300 cubits long by 50 cubits wide by 30 cubits high. Its length is exactly 30 royal cubits, which is 515 feet long, or 157 meters, its width is larger than 50 royal cubits, which is 86 feet, or 26.21 meters. The ruins today measure 138 feet or 42 meters wide, so what we see today is that the width of the ark is wider than what the biblical account says. However, this is explained by taking into consideration that the ark's walls probably fell outside as they decomposed and the ark settled down. So this extra width has been explained by understanding that the sides of the ark fell outward as it decayed, or also that the 50 cubits were an average width of the ark, not its width at its widest point. Three distinct layers or decks have been discovered from different geophysical scans, ground penetrating radars, and electrical resistivity images taken over the years. These scans reveal these layers only within the ship-shaped object and not outside of it.

During a radar scan by Ron Wyatt, in the presence of the local Turkish government, something unique seemed to appear. The Turkish government ordered a soldier to dig up the ground and a petrified piece of wood was uncovered. It was later tested and revealed it was indeed organic in nature and appeared to be four layers of wood laminated together. This is believed by some to be part of a deck timber. Even more surprising were laboratory analysis, which not only revealed that the petrified wood contained carbon, proving it was once wood, but there were iron nails imbedded in the wood. The Turkish government also claims they have found additional petrified wood on the site as well. As mentioned, John Larson carried out electrical resistivity tomography in 2014, which provides 3D images, which are quite convincing, that under the surface of the boat-shaped object, are what appear to be different decks and structures of a ship. Researcher Andrew Jones, along with Applied Geophysics Department of Istanbul University, believe that the results of the scans indicate a man-made artifact beneath the surface that can well be the ark and are eager to continue studying the location. The team believes that the new GPR data shows parallel lines and angular structures 8 to 20 feet down and that these parallel lines and right angles below the surface are something you would not expect to find in a natural geological formation. The formation identified in the scans, according to the team, that matches the dimensions of the Genesis description of Noah's Ark.

The Turkish government has established the Noah's Ark Visitor's Center in Eastern Turkey, near Mount Ararat and has dedicated the site as a national park and protected geological site. Originally opened in 1987, the facility has undergone extensive renovations, rededications, and modern digital art additions.

THE JOE ROGAN PODCAST

JOE ROGAN:

“One of the weird ones is they think they may have found the ark of Noah. They’ve identified it quite a while ago, but now they’ve done like ground penetrating radar scans. This thing is the exact same shape as is described in the Bible. It’s in the place where they said that it rested. Like in the Bible it said it rested on Mount Ararat in Turkey. That’s where it is. So it says in 2019 GPR data was analyzed again and American researchers uncovered corridors and room like chambers running the full length of the formation, consistent with a large, intelligently designed vessel. The Turkish soil test in 2024 also showed that samples inside the structure contain nearly three times more organic material than those from outside, suggesting the remains of an ancient, biological or man-made substances.”

FOX NEWS, “NOAH’S ARK MYSTERY DEEPENS WITH NEW RESEARCH”

FOX NEWS MALE REPORTER:

“Get ready for this one. A team of American researchers working in the high mountains of Turkey have uncovered what appears to be hidden tunnels similar to the descriptions of the biblical account of Noah’s Ark.”

FOX NEWS FEMALE REPORTER:

“Our next guest says his newly found evidence can prove that Noah’s Ark did in fact exist, turning this biblical mystery into a reality. Joining us now from Turkey is one of those researchers from Noah’s Ark Scans, Andrew Jones. Andrew thank you so much for joining us and all the good work you are doing. This is fascinating. Tell us about your findings that could prove the real life existence of Noah’s Ark.”

ANDREW JONES:

“Thank you for having me on. Yes, greetings from the mountains of Ararat where the Bible says the ark landed. At about one mile from the Iranian border and in this remote area, this boat formation was discovered in 1959, but our new research has shown there are tunnels about four meters down and about two meters high going down the center of the boat and on the inside edge of the hull shape, and so we’re we really believe that this layout showing tunnels and also possible support beams and walls would suggest that it is a man-made object and not just a natural formation.”

FOX NEWS MALE REPORTER:

"Yeah, many geologists disagree with that. They say, look, this is just a natural formation, but gosh Andrew, when I look at that it doesn't look very natural to me."

FOX NEWS FEMALE REPORTER:

"Looks like a boat!"

FOX NEWS MALE REPORTER:

"What's your response to those geologists?"

ANDREW JONES:

"Yeah, so first of all you'd have to explain how did the earthen formation get into the shape of a ship that is exactly 300 cubits long, which is the length given in the book of Genesis in the Bible. And so we have the exact length, we have the ship shape, and with the right location, and now we're also seeing that the soil inside is different than from right outside the formation. So we have three times more organic matter found inside versus right outside. So it is a distinct object and not just part of a mountainside."

FOX NEWS FEMALE REPORTER:

"Can you take your work underground and explore some of these tunnels to get a definitive answer?"

ANDREW JONES:

"That is the next goal. We're really hoping that the Turkish universities will be able to do that, and so that's the plan and that's what we've suggested and we're even wanting to help with designing the robot that can go down into these tunnels and film and take samples."

FOX NEWS MALE REPORTER:

"I understand that your organization is called, 'Noah's Ark Scans,' which probably answers my next question for me, but in your heart of hearts, based upon all the time and all the effort that you have put into this, do you truly believe that you have found Noah's Ark?"

ANDREW JONES:

"Yes, I do believe this is the real decayed buried remains of Noah's Ark, the famous ship, and we're doing our best to convince the skeptics and show the world this site."

FOX NEWS FEMALE REPORTER:

"Is your goal scientific or is it to strengthen people's faith Andrew?"

ANDREW JONES:

"I think it happens both ways. So you find an archaeological site like this out in the mountains, the archaeologists get involved, they do the science, and of course the faithful will want to come out and see it, and for them, I'm a Christian, it affirms our belief and the biblical account."

SEA CREATURES ARE FOUND ATOP EVERY MOUNTAIN RANGE IN THE WORLD

GENESIS 6:11 (NKJV):

In the six hundredth year of Noah's life, in the second month, the seventeenth day of the month, on that day all the fountains of the great deep were broken up...

Fossil remains of ocean creatures are found atop Earth's highest peak, Mount Everest. Fully enclosed, bivalve mollusks and other sea creatures are found atop every mountain range in the world. Fully encased, bivalve mollusks, where the animal's body is entirely enclosed by its hard carbonate shell, indicates a global flood, rapid displacement, and deposit atop mountains. These fully encased bivalve mollusks did not suffer predation, because these creatures had no predators atop mountain ranges that could consume them.

Secular scientists proclaim the summit of Mount Everest is made of marine limestone, meaning that the highest point on Earth was once the seafloor of an ancient ocean before being uplifted by tectonic forces over millions of years. The surrounding geological evidence debunks Tectonic Plate Theory for marine fossils on mountain peaks, but aligns perfectly with the biblical flood.

2 PETER 3:5-6 (NKJV):

For this they willfully forget: that by the word of Elohim (God) the heavens were of old, and the Earth standing out of water and in the water, by which the world that then existed perished, being flooded with water.

PROOF OF THE DESTRUCTION OF SODOM AND GOMORRAH AND OF LOT'S WIFE BECOMING A PILLAR OF SALT

GENESIS 19:24-26 (NKJV):

YHWH (the Lord) rained brimstone and fire on Sodom and Gomorrah, from YHWH (the Lord) out of the heavens. So He overthrew those cities, all the plain, all the inhabitants of the cities, and what grew on the ground. But his wife looked back behind him, and she became a pillar of salt.

Sodom and Gomorrah and all their residents were reduced to ashes, disappearing into the wrath of God.

UNDENIABLE PROOF OF SODOM AND GOMORRAH FOUND!

Actual remains of Lot's wife were discovered near the Dead Sea, close to where Sodom and Gomorrah were thought to have been located. There is an unusual pillar that some claim is Lot's wife. Archaeologists have studied its strange shape and found that it is composed of 80 percent salt. What makes this discovery so intriguing is that the Bible said God turned Lot's wife into a pillar of salt when she looked back at the burning cities. While it has not yet been confirmed whether she has been encased in the salt, the site provides compelling evidence. This includes millions of pure sulfur balls, mountains of ash covering ancient buildings, and clear burn marks found throughout the area. The site also aligns perfectly with the biblical timeline and location described in Genesis, including Lot's cave, where he hid during Sodom's destruction. This cave is located near the ruins of the cities and matches the geographical details provided in the biblical account. Local legend and archaeology also support the claim, with early Christians building a church around it as a sign of reverence, further adding credibility to the discovery.

HEBREW EXODUS FROM EGYPT; THE EGYPTIAN ARMY DROWNS IN THE RED SEA

EXODUS 14:13-31 (NKJV):

Moses said to the people, "Do not be afraid. Stand still, and see the salvation of YHWH (the Lord), which He will accomplish for you today. For the Egyptians whom you see today, you shall see again no more forever. YHWH (the Lord) will fight for you, and you shall hold your peace."

And YHWH (the Lord) said to Moses, "Why do you cry to Me? Tell the children of Israel to go forward. But lift up your rod, and stretch out your hand over the sea and divide it. And the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea. And I indeed will harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them. So I will gain honor over Pharaoh and over all his army, his chariots, and his horsemen. Then the Egyptians shall know that I am YHWH (the Lord), when I have gained honor for Myself over Pharaoh, his chariots, and his horsemen."

And the Angel of God, who went before the camp of Israel, moved and went behind them; and the pillar of cloud went from before them and stood behind them. So it came between the camp of the Egyptians and the camp of Israel. Thus it was a cloud and darkness to the one, and it gave light by night to the other, so that the one did not come near the other all that night.

Then Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and YHWH (the Lord) caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and made the sea into dry land, and the waters were divided. So the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea on the dry ground, and the waters were a wall to them on their right hand and on their left. ²³ And the Egyptians pursued and went after them into the midst of the sea, all Pharaoh's horses, his chariots, and his horsemen. Now it came to pass, in the morning watch, that YHWH (the Lord) looked down upon the army of the Egyptians through the pillar of fire and cloud, and He troubled the army of the Egyptians. And He took off their chariot wheels, so that they drove them with difficulty; and the Egyptians said, "Let us flee from the face of Israel, for YHWH (the Lord) fights for them against the Egyptians." Then YHWH (the Lord) said to Moses, "Stretch out your hand over the sea, that the waters may come back upon the Egyptians, on their chariots, and on their horsemen." And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea; and when the morning appeared, the sea returned to its full depth, while the Egyptians were fleeing into it. So YHWH (the Lord) overthrew the Egyptians in the midst of the sea. Then the waters returned and covered the chariots, the horsemen, and all the army of Pharaoh that came into the sea after them. Not so much as one of them remained. But the children of Israel had walked on dry land in the midst of the sea, and the waters were a wall to them on their right hand and on their left.

So YHWH (the Lord) saved Israel that day out of the hand of the Egyptians, and Israel saw the Egyptians dead on the seashore. Thus Israel saw the great work which YHWH (the Lord) had done in Egypt; so the people feared YHWH (the Lord), and believed YHWH (the Lord) and His servant Moses.

A dry riverbed, or wadi, leads to a beach where Ron Wyatt found a pillar inscribed by King Solomon supposedly marking the Red Sea crossing. In the Red Sea, Wyatt and his team claimed to have discovered coral encrusted chariot wheels, decayed chariot bodies, and skeletons of horses and humans, suggesting the remains of Pharaoh's army from the biblical Exodus.

For centuries, the Exodus story has been taught in churches, schools, and synagogues. A powerful tale of liberation and divine intervention, but the evidence to prove it; that's been elusive, until now.

Late in 2024, a team of elite divers entered the waters of the Red Sea, not in search of treasure, but of something far more significant. They weren't guided by myths or legends, but by a biblical account, one that's been questioned for millennia. What they found could be more than just underwater relics. It might be the very proof skeptics have long demanded.

The divers were not your typical underwater explorers. Among them were former Navy SEALs, marine engineers, and archaeologists all united by a shared mission: to prove or disprove one of the most debated events in human history. The mission was quiet. No press, no fanfare. Just a group of professionals diving into the deep waters of the Gulf of Aqaba, near Nuweiba Beach, where the ancient world may still rest. Armed with state of the art equipment, high resolution sonar, AI drones, and sediment scanners they scanned the seafloor for patterns, for anomalies. They weren't looking for just shapes, they were hunting for the remnants of war, a battle frozen in time. As they descended, they could not have known the stunning revelation that awaited them beneath the sea's dark surface. The discovery of chariot wheels buried beneath the sea began to feel more real with ever passing day. Wyatt's claim sparked a movement and over the years researchers, explorers, and even pastors took up the challenge. They dove into the same waters hoping to verify or debunk his controversial discoveries. Yet the mystery remained until 2024 when a new team ventured into the deep with cutting edge technology.

The 2024 dive team wasn't prepared for what they found. Using sonar imaging and AI assisted drones they initially encountered smooth terrain punctuated by occasional rock formations, but then something unexpected appeared: symmetry, repetition, unnatural shapes, chariot wheels, several of them. The wheels, though encrusted in coral, had an unmistakable form. And it wasn't just a random formation; it seemed too perfect, too deliberate. As the drones pressed deeper more shapes emerged: circular structures, axle like connectors, and fragments of ancient battle remnants. The divers went down, capturing footage as they moved closer. Beneath a veil of sediment a golden flash caught the light, a metallic shimmer among the muted blues and greys. They couldn't believe their eyes. Were these the chariot wheels of Pharaoh's army preserved in the sea for thousands of years?

As the divers descended into the depths the atmosphere was charged with excitement and awe. One diver described the scene as a watery tomb, while another referred to it as a graveyard of war. The bodies, chariots, and remains weren't scattered haphazardly. They were arranged in a way that suggested chaos frozen in motion. Some fragments showed signs of violent impact, shattered axles, broken spokes, contorted skeletal frames. Was this a battle or had Pharaoh's army been swallowed by divine force, as the Bible describes? The team was left in stunned silence, as they continued documenting their findings. For many it was the confirmation of a long held belief, an ancient miracle preserved beneath the waves

THE SPLIT ROCK OF HOREB

After leaving Egypt, the Israelites travelled through the hot desert. Soon they had no water to drink and the people began to complain. Moses prayed to God for help. God told Moses to strike a rock with his staff. Moses obeyed God and struck the rock. Suddenly water began flowing out of the rock. God provided water for everyone. God always provides for His people.

The split rock at Horeb. Exodus 17:6 records God's instructions to Moses when the Israelites were dying of thirst in the wilderness: "I will stand there before you by the rock at Horeb. Strike the rock, and water will come out of it for people to drink." This massive rock split through the middle displays the pattern of water erosion and evidence that numerous streams came forth in several directions.

PROOF OF THE RESURRECTION OF YESHUA (JESUS)

ROMANS 1:4 (BSB):

Yeshua (Jesus) declared with power to be the Son of God by the resurrection from the dead.

THE SHROUD OF TURIN: THE SCOURGING OF YESHUA (JESUS)

The shroud shows scourge marks on the front and the back of the cloth. The details are so precise. Researchers have identified a Roman dumbbell-tipped flagrum (flagellum) found in Pompei from 70 AD. The wounds on the cloth match the dumbbell-tipped flagrum with incredible accuracy.

A BURST OF CONSCIOUS LIGHT

The shroud acts like a photographic negative. The imprinted image of light on the shroud is 250 times thinner than a human hair. Photographers of the shroud have discovered, throughout the years, that a positive image revealing facial features and wounds can be obtained through photography. Computer analysis and AI has also aided in revealing the secrets of the shroud.

Italian scientist Paulo Di Lazzaro says it would take a mind-blowing burst of light, so powerful that "we don't have that power on Earth," to create the image on the Shroud of Turin. Dr. Liberato De Caro from Italy's Institute of Crystallography published recent studies in the Heritage Journal confirming the authenticity of the Holy Shroud of Turin. The evidence, he concludes, points away from a medieval forgery and aligns with the Gospel accounts.

No one has successfully replicated the shroud. The blood on the fabric is real human blood (Type AB+) and shows signs of extreme trauma. Pollen from plants native to Jerusalem was also found, tracing its path to Europe. The image itself is a scientific mystery – its not painted, but a precise, superficial discoloration on the outer fibers of the cloth, created by an intense burst of energy.

34 TRILLION WATTS

34 Trillion watts is how much light emitted in a split second from inside a whipped, crucified corpse to burn its image into the Shroud of Turin.

FORENSICS

If DNA and fingerprints are sufficient evidence to show that a person was at a crime scene... then surely the Shroud of Turin linen cloth is sufficient evidence of the crucifixion, burial, and resurrection of Yeshua Messiah (Jesus Christ).

If the Shroud of Turin was a medieval artwork or forgery, then why were the best details hidden such as photographic negative imagery and encoded 3D information? The shroud contains imagery that we can only see today through advancements in technology. Most of the imagery of the shroud can only be seen through microscopy and scientific analysis.

JOHN 14:6 (NKJV):

“I am the way, the truth, and the life.”

ROMANS 10:9 (NKJV):

If you confess with your mouth the Lord Yeshua (Jesus) and believe in your heart that God has raised Him from the dead, you will be saved.
